

About the Authors

Ronald Hecker Cram is Associate Professor of Christian Education at Columbia Theological Seminary in Decatur, Georgia and president of the Religious Education Association. He is the author of Understanding Trends in Protestant Education in the United States (1998) and several articles on the relation of violence and religious education, including "Adult Memories of Childhood Bully Experiences," which will appear in the summer 2001 edition of the journal Religious Education. He is working presently on two books: on tolerance and religious education, and on bullying and religious education. This essay is adapted and expanded from the 1999 Fahs Lecture, delivered in Salt Lake City at the UUA General Assembly.

Anthony David is currently a second-year student at Meadville Lombard Theological School and a candidate for the Unitarian Universalist ministry. He has a B.A. and M.A. in Philosophy from Texas A&M University and taught philosophy from 1991-1999 at Blinn College in Bryan, Texas. He is a member of the American Philosophical Association, the American Academy of Religion, the Unitarian Universalist Historical Society, and the Unitarian Universalist Minister's Association. Anthony is married to Laura Keys-David; their daughter, Sophia, is nine.

Linda Hansen is the minister of the Peoples Church Unitarian Universalist in Cedar Rapids, Iowa. This essay was originally given as the Arthur Judy Lecture at the Annual Meeting of the Prairie Star District in 2000. Prior to parish ministry, Linda taught philosophy for many years. Previous publications include essays published in "Philosophy Today," "Soundings," and "The Journal of Popular Film and Television."

Christopher Hinkle is currently pursuing doctoral studies in theology at Harvard Divinity School. A former Presbyterian, he is now active in the Winchester Unitarian Society where his partner, Ralph Roberts, serves as Minister of Religious Education. Hinkle will be teaching a course in Unitarian Universalist Theology at Andover Newton Theological School in Fall 2001.

Leslie Takahashi Morris is an aspirant for the Unitarian Universalist ministry and a student in the Modified Residency Program at Meadville Lombard Theological School. She has been a member of the Eno River Unitarian Universalist Fellowship in Durham, NC since 1988, a member-on-loan to All Souls Church Unitarian Universalist and a member of the T.J. District Antiracism Transformation Team.

Sarah C. Stewart will complete her Master of Divinity at Harvard Divinity School in 2001. She is a candidate for the Unitarian Universalist ministry and currently serves as the ministerial intern at Theodore Parker Church in West Roxbury, Massachusetts.

Alice Blair Wesley has served congregations in Texas, Maryland and New Jersey, was president of UU Advance, and founded First Days Record, a journal for UU ministers. She is the author of a 1986 book, Myths of Time and History: A Unitarian Universalist Theology among other essays and articles. Alice is currently helping to edit the new online Dictionary of UU Biography, a project of the UU Historical Society. The 2000-01 Minns lectures were delivered in UU churches in Dedham and Brookline, MA; at Seattle University and the University Unitarian Church in Seattle, WA; and at All Souls Unitarian Church in Tulsa, OK.